Summary of 1099 Types and Related Forms

- ❑ Attorney Payments: Payments to attorneys, which are not solely for legal fees, are reportable in Box 14 of Form 1099-Misc.
- ❑ Penalties: The IRS assesses $15–$50 for each late/incorrectly filed Form 1099-Misc/W-2. This is not a new law, but the IRS is becoming more vigilant in assessing these penalties for revenue generation.
- ❑ 1099-MISC: Reporting is required if $600 or more is paid to a business or individual, which is NOT a corporation, for non-employee compensation or rental fees. Note: You must report all payments to attorneys of $600 or more regardless of their corporate status.
- ❑ 1099-INT: Reporting is required if $10 or more of interest is paid by your company to a recipient. The IRS does not recognize interest-free loans. You are exempt from filing Form 1099-INT if the interest is paid to a corporation or tax-exempt organization.
- ❑ Form W-9: Request for Taxpayer Identification Number and Certification. This form is provided to your vendors and requests information to determine if a Form 1099 is required. If required, it provides the appropriate information to properly prepare the form. Please do not return this form to Pietrasiuk, Kelley & Kelley. It is to be maintained in your company files. Form W-9 is also located at www.pkkcpa.com under Client Resources and the Tax Forms Library under the Info tab.
- ❑ 2009 Filing Requirements to the State of Michigan and Michigan Cities: When a federal Form 1099-MISC is required and the recipient resides and/or performs services in Michigan, you MUST file a copy of Form 1099-MISC with the State of Michigan. Furthermore, if the recipient resides and/or performs services in a Michigan City, which imposes a tax on its residents/businesses, you are also required to file a copy of Form 1099-MISC within that municipality. For additional 1099-MISC filing instructions with the State of Michigan, see page 4 of this newsletter, or go to the State of Michigan website: www.michigan.gov/tax. Who must file Form 1099?

In general, any business that pays another business or individual and meets the criteria listed below (including non-employee compensation, rents paid, and interest paid) must file Form 1099. Please note that this is NOT a comprehensive list of all Forms 1099 or requirements. Please contact our office if you have specific questions or concerns. You may also visit the Internal Revenue Service website at www.irs.gov for more information.

☐ Form 1099-MISC. This informational return has multiple uses. The three most common uses for our clients include:

Non-Employee Compensation - Form 1099-MISC is primarily used to report ALL non-employee compensation for services rendered to your trade or business for which you made payments, unless a corporation performed the services. (If the payments were for medical services or to attorneys, corporations would not be exempt from this filing.) Some examples may include:

- Accountant fees if the accountant or accountants are not a professional corporation (P.C.)
- Attorney fees even if the attorney or attorneys are a professional corporation (P.C.)
- Fees paid by one professional to another, such as fee splitting or referral fees
- Payments by attorneys to witnesses or experts in legal adjudication
- Payments for contractor services, including payment for parts or materials used to render the services, unless the person rendering the service is in the business of selling parts and materials
- Commissions paid to non-employee salespersons
- Payment to non-employee entertainers for services
- Exchanges for services (i.e., barter transactions)
- Directors' fees for non-employees

Attorneys – Payments made to attorneys in the course of your trade or business are and continue to be reportable in Box 7 of Form 1099-MISC. However, if you make a payment in the course of your trade or business to an attorney in connection with legal services and the attorney’s fee is not reportable by you, the total amount paid to the attorney (gross proceeds) must be reported in Box 14. For example, an insurance company pays an attorney $100,000 to settle a claim. The attorney’s fee is not reportable by the insurance company. Therefore, the insurance company must report $100,000 in Box 14 of Form 1099-MISC.

These rules apply (a) whether or not the legal services are provided to the payer and (b) whether or not the attorney is the exclusive payee (e.g., the attorneys’ and claimant’s names are on one check).

If you paid your attorney any trust account amounts or if it is not determinable which portion paid to your attorney represented legal fees and which portion represented trust account holdings, please contact our office for further information.

Amount to report:	Applies to $600 or more
Due date to IRS:	Postmarked by March 1, 2010
Due date to recipient:	Postmarked by January 31, 2010

Rents Paid - Form 1099-MISC is also used to report rents paid to any person or business that is not a corporation or real estate agent. Examples may include but are not limited to:

- Office space rental
- Machine rental

Amount to report	Applies to $600 or more
Due date to IRS:	Postmarked by March 1, 2010
Due date to recipient:	Postmarked by January 31, 2010

- Form 1099-INT. This informational return is used to report interest paid by your company to the recipient. For example, either you (as owner of your company) or a friend makes a loan to the business. The IRS does NOT recognize interest-free loans. Hence, we will need to calculate a reasonable interest amount on the outstanding balance of the loan throughout the year. This interest amount will be included into the income of the person making the loan.

Amount to report:	Applies to $10 or more
Due date to IRS:	Postmarked by March 1, 2010
Due date to recipient:	Postmarked by January 31, 2010

Note: If the interest is paid to a corporation or tax-exempt organization, you are exempt from filing Form 1099-INT.
